Teaching Evaluations: Results of Student Evaluations of Teaching

Teachers in the College of Agriculture (COA) are evaluated in every class through administration of the Student Perception of Teaching (SPOT) evaluation instrument. In the Department of Agricultural Economics and Agribusiness, these evaluations are used for both teaching improvement and as input for promotion and tenure decisions. The SPOT contains a total of 20 questions, scaled from 1 to 5. All teaching faculty in the College of Agriculture are required to include five standardized questions, allowing comparison across the College. The other 15 questions allow comparison of the instructor with departmental scores, as well as providing a time series for analysis of an individual. Students are also encouraged to provide written comments to the instructor.

Major Areas of Research Interest

The major focus of my research concerns the economics of agricultural production in Louisiana. More specifically, my research program is directed toward analyzing farm management and production decisions involving the production of rice and sugarcane in Louisiana from an economic point of view. The general objective of this research program is to conduct economic evaluations of physical, technological, economic, and political factors affecting the production of rice and sugarcane, as a single enterprise, and the management of rice and sugarcane farms, within a whole-farm context, in Louisiana. Specific objectives include: (1) identify and prioritize production and farm management issues and problems facing Louisiana rice and sugarcane producers; (2) develop and maintain a representative set of annual costs and returns estimates for rice, sugarcane and other major crop enterprises grown in the rice and sugarcane producing areas of Louisiana; (3) evaluate the relative economic feasibility of alternative rice and sugarcane production technologies within a single enterprise context; and (4) evaluate the impact of physical, technological, economic, and political factors on the enterprise mix, resource allocation, and economic performance of rice and sugarcane farms within a whole farm context.

Research conducted at LSU in the area of the economics of rice production has included: (1) annual changes in rice production costs under various production systems; (2) the estimation of a rough rice basis series; (3) the responsiveness of rice acreage to changes in price and production costs; (4) the adoption of rice best management practices; (5) the impact of declining transition program payments on rental arrangements; (6) commodity price behavior in the domestic rice market; (7) the impact of weather on days suitable for field work; (8) base acre returns under alternative rice program payment options; (9) the optimal use of nitrogen fertilizer under conventional and conservation tillage production systems; and (10) optimal rough rice storage and marketing strategies; (11) precision grading rice land; (12) rice land rental arrangements; (13) evaluation of rice base acreage and program yield changes; (14) conservation tillage rice production; (15) Clearfield herbicide-resistant rice production and (16) cost of production crop insurance.

Research conducted in the area of the economics of sugarcane production has included: (1) annual changes in sugarcane production costs by stage of crop cycle; (2) the optimal use of nitrogen fertilizer in sugarcane production; (3) the valuation of growing perennial sugarcane crops; (4) optimization of the harvest schedule; (5) investment and operating costs of alternative harvesting systems; (6) economic analysis of stubble crop length decisions; (7) economics of furrow irrigation of sugarcane; (8) economics of precision grading sugarcane land; (9) the structure and costs of the sugarcane processing industry; (10) impact of delivery time on economic losses from dextran formation in harvested sugarcane; (11) precision grading sugarcane land; (12) economics of sugarcane variety selection and crop yield patterns; (13) allocation of sugarcane planting costs; (14) cost comparison of wholestalk and billet planting methods; (15) impact of free trade agreements on raw sugar prices.

Recent research activities have expanded into the area of biofuels, focusing specifically on the economics of biofuel feedstock production, transportation and processing. Specific research projects include the economic feasibility of ethanol production from sugar in the United States, estimation of cellulosic ethanol feedstock production costs from high-fiber energy sugarcane, sweet sorghum feedstock production costs, evaluation of alternative biomass feedstock pricing strategies, as well as the optimal location placement of biomass processing plants.

Other Selected Extension Activities

- 2014 – Participated with Louisiana USDA Farm Service Agency personnel in making presentations at several regional 2014 Farm Bill education meetings across the state.
- 2011 – Lead an LSU AgCenter economics team responding to a request from Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture Mike Strain to evaluate port lease bid proposals by Cargill and Dreyfus to lease the grain facilities at the Port of Greater Baton Rouge.
- 2008 – Traveled to Washington, D.C., with Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture Mike Strain to provide testimony to a U.S. Senate Committee on the impact of the hurricanes on Louisiana agriculture and the difficulties of the effectiveness of the 2008 Farm Bill SURE program in providing adequate disaster coverage.

- 2007 – Traveled to Washington, D.C., with Louisiana sugar industry representatives to advise USDA Under Secretary of Agriculture Mark Keenum on current market and price conditions and the expected impact of additional TRQ sugar imports on the U.S. sugar industry.
- 2005 – Requested by USDA Secretary Mike Johanns, at the urging of several U.S. senators from sugar producing states, to conduct a study for USDA to evaluate the feasibility of converting sugar (cane/beet) to ethanol in the United States. This study was conducted through a cooperative agreement between the LSU AgCenter and the Office of the Chief Economist, USDA. The request for this study grew out of the debate in Congress at the time related to the Dominican Republic-Central America Free Trade Agreement (DR-CAFTA).
- 2004 - Technical Advisor to CoBank Business Advisory Services for the 2004 Louisiana Sugar Joint Cooperative Business Plan Development Project.
- 2003- Trade Study on Impact of FTA's on Raw Sugar Prices - Conducted an analysis of the potential impact of the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA) and other FTAs on raw sugar prices for the Louisiana Bankers Association and First South Farm Credit System. Results of the study were published in a departmental staff report and in an article in The Sugar Bulletin, trade publication of the American Sugar Cane League.
- 2002-2003 - Member: American Sugar Cane League Cane Quality Committee. An industry/research committee formed to identify production practices, harvest practices and other factors which can improve the quality of harvested sugarcane being delivered to raw sugar factories for processing.
- 2002 Farm Bill Program - Developed an Excel spreadsheet decision aids to assist producers in evaluating various crop base acreage and program yield update options available to them under the 2002 Farm Bill. Program payment estimated in the spreadsheet included fixed direct payments and counter cyclical payments, both of which are decoupled from actual production. Payments were calculated for program crops including corn, cotton, rice, sorghum, wheat, barley, oats and soybeans. Four farm update options were evaluated: (1) Addition of soybean (oilseed) base with no update of existing base for other crops; (2) Update of farm base acreage with no update of program yields; (3) Update of farm base acreage with program yields updated as 70% of the increase in yield; and (4) Update of farm base acreage with program yields updated as 93.5% of the 1998-2001 average. This spreadsheet program was placed on the Department of Agricultural Economics Farm Management web page and was widely used by producers in several states.
- 2000 - Received a request through the LSU Agricultural Center's Chancellors Office from the Louisiana Rice Producers' Group requesting that a study be conducted on the economic feasibility of the construction and operation of a bulk rough rice export facility capable of loading ocean vessels in Louisiana. This request is the result of the increased export demand of rough rice from the U.S. in recent years. Primary markets for this rough rice are countries in Latin America. U.S. Census Bureau data on U.S. rice exports to specific countries were obtained for the most recent six years (1994-99). These data were analyzed to identify major rough rice export markets (countries) for the U.S. and to identify leading port districts through which U.S. rough rice was being exported. Conclusions of the study were that a facility devoted exclusively to rice would be most feasible at a port location on the Mississippi River, as opposed to a location closer to the major Louisiana rice production area such as the Port of Lake Charles.
- 2000 - Received a request from the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation to prepare a report on the impact of drought conditions in Louisiana on rice production. This request originally came from U.S. Congressman Chris John's office relative to a pending farm disaster aid bill. Report was delivered to the Farm Bureau on May 15, 2000 which outlined the problems with rice irrigation caused by drought conditions, an estimate of 120,000 acres of rice prevented from being planted in Louisiana, and an estimated lost gross income of $53 million.

- 2000 - Request from American Sugar Cane League to evaluate the possible elimination of burning and the truck weight limit provision. Estimates of the costs to the sugarcane industry in Louisiana were developed and presented to the American Sugar Cane League. Results showed that reducing the truck weight limit from 100,000 pounds to 83,300 pounds would increase the state's industry hauling costs by almost $6 million and that the elimination of burning cane prior to harvest would cost $3.2 million for every one percent increase in leaf trash entering the mill.
- 1999 - Prepared a report on the valuation of sugarcane associated with land sales for Gulf South Appraisal Company in Baton Rouge. The research question involved the determination of the economic value of a sugarcane crop on land which is acquired through eminent domain for such purposes as road or pipeline construction. A 34-page report was prepared and sent to Gulf South describing the methodology required to calculate crop values along with representative examples.
- 1995 - Met with the Farm Bill Study Committee of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation to discuss and answer questions regarding the impacts of alternative payment options for the 1995 Farm Bill.
- 1995 - Discussed the economic implications of the Freedom to Farm Bill (House bill) and the Agricultural Reconciliation Act of 1995 (Senate bill) for U.S. Rice Farms at a meeting of the U.S. Rice Producers Group, USA Rice Federation Meeting, Dallas, TX, October 23, 1995.
- 1995 - Prepared analysis of rice and cotton provisions of the Conference Committee farm bill requested by Senators Bennett Johnston and John Breaux.
- 1995 - Testified on the formulation of the 1995 farm bill before the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture-Subcommittee on General Farm Commodities at a House Committee field hearing in Vicksburg, MS.

Responsibilities included dissemination of information concerning external funding opportunities to faculty including publication of a monthly newsletter and development and maintenance of a web page; serving as a liaison with Louisiana commodity organizations which fund experiment station research including distribution of requests for proposals, collection of research proposals for delivery to funding commodity boards, arrange programs at which researchers present findings of funded research, and develop externally funded research contracts between commodity boards and the experiment station; and manage the administration of all experiment station external funding including review and approval of proposals, establishment of external funded research accounts, maintain records of grant and contract activity, and annually publish a report summarizing experiment station grant and research contract activity by unit.

2002 Louisiana Sugarcane Disaster Program, Farm Service Agency, USDA

Administration of the $60 million 2002 Louisiana Sugarcane Disaster Program. The U.S. Congress authorized an allocation of $60 million to the Louisiana sugarcane industry to offset the substantial economic losses from severe weather which occurred during the 2002 harvest season. Disaster payments were to be based upon historical farm level yields, however these data had not been collected by USDA. Although the USDA-FSA unit in Kansas City, MO, normally determines crop disaster payments, they were unable to perform their usual functions because of insufficient data available. I was asked by USDA-FSA and the American Sugar Cane League to perform the functions necessary to allocate the $60 million disaster fund. My responsibilities in this endeavor included: (1) identification and development of software for use by sugar mills and local parish FSA offices for collection and assimilation of necessary data, (2) collection of certified sugarcane acreage by land tract from parish FSA offices, (3) collection of sugar production by land tract from sugar mills, (4) estimation of percent yield loss on every sugarcane tract of land in the state of Louisiana (approximately 11,000 tracts), (5) determination of disaster payment for each tract, and (6) preparation and delivery of required data and forms to mills and FSA.

2005 Louisiana Sugarcane Disaster Program, Farm Service Agency, USDA

Administration of the $40 million 2005 Louisiana Sugarcane Disaster Program. The U.S. Congress authorized an allocation of $40 million to the Louisiana sugarcane industry to offset the substantial economic losses from severe weather which occurred during the 2005 harvest season as a result of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. Disaster payments were to be based upon historical farm level yields, however these data had not been collected by USDA. Although the USDA-FSA unit in Kansas City, MO, normally determines crop disaster payments, they were unable to perform their usual functions because of insufficient data available. I was asked by USDA-FSA and the American Sugar Cane League to perform the functions necessary to allocate the $40 million disaster fund. My responsibilities in this endeavor included: (1) identification and development of software for use by sugar mills and local parish FSA offices for collection and assimilation of necessary data, (2) collection of certified sugarcane acreage by land tract from parish FSA offices, (3) collection of sugar production by land tract from sugar mills, (4) estimation of percent yield loss on every sugarcane tract of land in the state of Louisiana (approximately 10,000 tracts), (5) determination of disaster payment for each tract, and (6) preparation and delivery of required data and forms to mills and FSA.

Assistant to the Director, Louisiana Agricultural Experiment Station, LSU Agricultural Center, 2008 – 20% administrative appointment in the LAES Director's Office with primary responsibilities of assisting in Hatch and multistate research project review and management, oversight of selected sponsored program activities and liaison with various commodity clientele groups.
